PROGRAM

This seminar will examine the trajectory of the notion of program throughout the second half of the twentieth century. Specifically, it will focus on the various terms coined in the field of architecture to describe—in fact, to reduce—actions in space: from function to behavior, from situation to event, from use to misuse, from organization to performance. Each session will be devoted to one term, and will scrutinize the concepts it articulated, the objectives it pursued, the critiques it entailed, and the practices it implied. Ultimately, this seminar will trace a genealogy of design strategies formulated to program architecture.
